The yachting cult have cause for congratulation from the fact that the Columbia and Shamrock really had a race yesterday, the former winning by about a mile. The country will now begin to take notice of that contest which had started considerably for lack of wind.

Mr. C. E. Starr of Fleming, favored this office with two papers from the Philippines, "The American," and "Freedom." They are dailies, and though odd-looking typographically and printed on very flimsy stock, yet their contents make an American feel right at home with them. The papers were sent Mr. Starr by his brother-in-law, Clarence V. Smith, who is a member of Co. F, 17th Infantry.

In a letter received here from Theodor Ripley, who is now at Manila, that your gman says concerning the shift Aginaldo, that the Americans may have him cornered before the close of the rainy season, which last year was in December; but if he is not cornered by that time this year, he will still be honoring new towns with the presence of his migratory governmental headquarters.

Mr. Ripley says that military law is yet the order at Manila, and many are anxiously looking forward to the establishment of civil government in all its branches, and to a consequent increase in business.

Mr. Ripley expects to remain in the Philippines till spring at any rate, and the course of events till that time will determine whether he will remain.

"A Wise Woman."

One of the greatest farce successes of the season will be seen at the Auditorium tonight. There is not only a great quantity of fun in this farce, we are told, but its atmosphere is said to be of a more refined and exquisite quality than usually obtains in farce. The farce is said to be acted with full appreciation of all its qualities by the splendid company which has been assembled in its cast.

M. G. SEIPEL, Mgr.

In the name of religion, we presume, the "Sailor Preacher," Bettes, was haranguing down on Front street near Greene Sunday afternoon. The man gathered quite a crowd about him and he talked so that he might be heard across the township. Instead of religion the orator talked politics, and discussed more particularly the trusts whose being he assumed to lay to the Republican party. He failed to connect the name of John R. McLean (whose cause he is working—and damaging) with the Washington Gas Trust, or to say how that gentleman has made his great wealth. The speaker spent most of his time in telling stories, the point to all of which seemed to be strong language, such as hell, damnation and any other coarse expressions which might cause the crowd, in bad taste, to laugh.

A man like Bettes let loose in a community can do no good to a cause which he has supposed to have espoused and if McLean is paying the freight on him he had better sequester him for a few weeks at some small way station.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup invariably cures promptly all catarrhal affections. This wonderful medicine performs today, and has performed in the past half century, the strictest cures of colds in the throat, chest and lungs.

Ohio and Trusts.

The attempt of the Democratic party and Mr. McLean's newspaper to make it appear that the Republicans of Ohio are championing trusts has been very lame from the start and is manifestly crippled beyond recovery.

A few facts which are already generally appreciated by the voters, show the utter falsity of any such charge. Practically all the laws governing corporations in Ohio have been enacted by Republican legislatures. These laws very greatly restrict the scope for which any single stock company can be formed. Under the laws of Ohio a stock company cannot engage in more than one specific line of business. For example, a company may be organized to build and operate a railroad, but it cannot under the laws of Ohio also own and operate blast furnaces, steel mills, coal mines, iron ore mines and a great number of different lines of business.

One of the great objects of a trust, or the big combinations of capital under corporate charters which are considered trusts, is to amalgamate not merely separate industries in the same field, but subsidiary lines of business. For example, one of the big steel corporations owns iron ore mines and operates them; it owns the railroads from the mines to the docks; it owns the docks; it owns and operates the steamships which transport the ore; it owns the docks where the boats are unloaded and operates the same, in addition to a large number of iron and steel plants.

But this corporation was not organized under Ohio laws. The Ohio laws, enacted by Republican legislatures, specifically protect the people from just that sort of a combination. That steel company has its home in New Jersey, where no restriction exists as to what it may do.

The laws under which trusts are organized in the state of New Jersey, were all passed by Democratic legislatures. They have contributed more to the formation of trusts than any other legislation that has ever been enacted. The contrast between this Democratic legislation and the Republican legislation in Ohio is instructive and significant. It shows the contrast between the two great parties. Moreover, the Republicans of Ohio enacted the present anti-trust law and have put on the statute books all the laws under which the prosecutions in this state which have been brought against trusts are proceeding.

Contrast with this record of the Republican party the do-nothing record of the Democracy. If the Democratic states of New Jersey and West Virginia, which is almost as liberal as New Jersey in its corporation laws, had been as rigid in placing restrictions upon corporations as the Republican state of Ohio, there would, in all probability, have been fewer trusts today.

Yet Mr. McLean's newspaper and Mr. McLean, in his Hamilton speech, as well as McLean's platform adopted by his convention at Zanesville, set up a great cry that the Republican party is the father of trusts. Nothing can be farther from the truth and the intelligent people of Ohio will not be deceived by the McLean dust-throwing.—Ohio State Journal.

MY BABE.

Out of the Voice of God, my sweet Babe sprang.
Bursting the golden flooring, breaking through The purple screen; and ten thousand angels sang.
A melody, born that day, A sweet new Song; an unbreathed thought, that grew in His mind.
As my Babe grew out of His loving heart, In the hallow that holds her eyes, I find There is some of the blue that clung; and part of the heaven-wrought gold still tipping her hair.
Throws kisses to the Autumn sun's soft ray, And the smile of heaven, on her face so fair, May be there to know me the way.
And can I ever deny Thy wondrous power, O God! with my dear Babe, Thy fairest flower.

DEADLY

Weapon, Was a Pocket Knife in the Hands of Jesse Lucas.

YOUNG MAN FATALLY STABBED

At a Notorious Resort Near Cutler Saturday Evening.

DETAILS OF THE HORRIBLE AFFAIR.

Both Had Been Drinking and Quarreled, Probably Over a Girl—Lucas Now in Jail in This City.

Vinton Male, a young colored man whose home was near Cutler, was fatally stabbed by Jesse Lucas, another young colored man, at the house of Robert Cunningham, two and a half miles west of Cutler, Saturday evening. The instrument of death was an ordinary pocket knife. The affair is supposed to have been the result of a jealous quarrel over one of Cunningham's girls. The Cunningham house has a reputation that is far from good and is said to be a rendezvous for all the tough characters in that neighborhood.

The details of the affair as told to a Leader man by Lucas at the county jail yesterday, is as follows:

Lucas has been employed as section hand on the T. & O. C. E. railroad, and had worked all day Saturday on the road. After he quit work in the evening, he started to the old tool house beyond Cutler to get a dinner bucket he had left there some time ago. While on the road he met some boys, among whom were Vinton Male and his brother, Harlow, and they all decided to go to the Cunningham house. The prisoner says that he had taken a drink previous to the trouble at the house, and that he did not drink enough to intoxicate him. He says that a quarrel resulted between him and Male, and the latter getting angry because Lucas sat down on the bed beside the girl and began talking to her. Lucas refused to tell the particulars of the killing, but said he went home afterward and did not attempt to escape, and that he was there when arrested by Constable George Henry Sunday morning.

Constable Henry says that there had probably been bad blood existing between the two boys for some time, as they were rivals for the affections of the Cunningham girl. Witnesses say that Male had a revolver and a razor during the evening, but Lucas stated Monday afternoon that he did not see Male have any weapons.

The knife entered Lucas' left breast about three inches below the left nipple, and he died in about fifteen minutes in the Cunningham house.

Squire Featherston, of Rome, Athens county, was present during the quarrel and tried to persuade the boys to desist, but they would not.

It is also said that Male threw a large rock at Lucas' head, which he dodged and then in self defense he struck the fatal blow. It is also intimated that the other Male boy took a hand in the racket and that his arrest will soon follow.

Vinton Male was about twenty years of age, was the son of Lyman Male, and he had the reputation of being rather tough. His funeral occurred yesterday.

Jesse Lucas is about twenty years of age and is the son of Granville Lucas, a well known respected colored preacher. He has always borne the reputation of being a hard worker and one who knew his way he has been a young man of good habits and disposition. Neither of the young men was married.

Lucas was arrested by Constable George Henry Sunday morning and had a hearing before Squire W. R. Simpson of Decatur township Sunday. He was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of manslaughter.

He was brought to this city Monday by Constable George Henry and is now in the county jail.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has saved many a life. It can always be relied on to cure the dangerous croup and whooping cough. It gives immediate relief and should be kept in every home. It only costs 25 cents a bottle.

The Camden Well.

Not in many months have field developments attracted so much attention as during the past week. There was a general awakening all along the line, and information was eagerly sought after and the fact that the reports emanated from many sources with little basis made the interest all the greater on account of the conflicting rumors.

The well to stir up the fraternity in the eastern fields was the Southern Oil Co.'s strike on the Camden tract, near Weston, Lewis county. The well was drilled into the sand early Friday morning of the week before, and began to flow on the ground at a rate estimated at 250 barrels a day, and later drilled itself in and increased its production to between 400 and 500 barrels a day. It was no wonder that operators from all parts of the country hurried to the vicinity of the new strike, located fully 12 miles from any previous production. It was thought that the opportunity had come at last to get back into the business. It was found, however, that the territory in the vicinity of the new well had been under lease for some time, and the openings were few and too remote from the new field. One block of 6,000 acres, three-fourth of a mile from the Camden well, was leased for $20,000, this being the only transaction in leases of any magnitude.

The excitement that was at a white heat early in the week had cooled down very much at the close, when it was known that the decline of the well was almost as rapid as its rise. It is the generally accepted opinion that the producing sand is the Big Injun formation and without any salt water. It also has a strong gas pressure and to this cause is attributed the falling off to less than 20 barrels a day instead of holding up good and strong, as when first drilled in. The location of the well is further east than any previous discovery in West Virginia territory. The oil was developed at a depth of 1,485 feet and if anything like a field can be opened it will make cheap territory to operate, and with the work now starting its status should not long be a matter of conjecture. There remains the possibility that the well is only a freak and nothing better, or even as good, may be found in that locality. Some of those who visited the well and watched its actions came away attaching little importance to its showing after it was four days old. Operators will push explorations further to the east than they have in the past. There will be a new area of wildcatting in territory that has not been looked to with favor in the past.—Journal.

Where Is This Land?

Bellaire, O., Oct. 15.—A suit for the recovery of the title of some valuable land in the city of Marietta, O., will be watched by a large number of people in this vicinity. Joseph Moneyhun and other heirs have retained Captain B. B. Dovenor, one of West Virginia's congressmen, in a suit to be brought in Marietta to recover some valuable property. John Moneyhun died in that city in 1857 at a ripe old age, leaving beside other property, 300 acres of land on a part of which much of the recent improvement of Marietta has been built. He left no will. Mrs. Moneyhun died at the age of 106 years. Surviving her were four girls, Mrs. Mary Ann Conger, Mrs. Eliza King, Mrs. Nancy Ambler, Mrs. Sarah Watermann and her son, Elijah Moneyhun, and the infant son of another son, John Moneyhun. The present claimants to the property now contend that as they were infant heirs the statute of limitation would not run against them until they became of age, and also that those who received title from the administrator could not set up their title against the cestui que trust, as it is an old principle of law that a trustee cannot set up a title against those for whom he holds, founded on a statute of limitation and those deriving title through him would be held to the same limitations.

Prof. Slater.

The "Spiritualist," Prof. J. J. Slater, exhibited to a good house Sunday night at the Auditorium, and his performance was creditable in the extreme. His work consisted almost entirely of feats of legdemon, and they were of a novel nature and truly wonderful. There was no hypnotism nor trances, and it was totally unlike a spiritualistic seance with spirit-rappings and trappings, but it was better still, for he did some wholly incredible things by his own peculiar magic.

For a man as original as he, who can accomplish with ease and alacrity the remarkable feats he did, the general run of humanity must have no little respect. Slater is way out of the ordinary as an entertainer.

Care Constipation Forever.

Oil News.

It is said that Mr. E. Clarke, Jr., has sold his lease and holdings on the Moore farm to the United States Oil Co. for a price in the neighborhood of $100,000. There are thirty wells on the lease, twenty-eight of which are being pumped. This property is considered one of the most valuable pieces of oil property in the Marietta fields.

Drilling was commenced on Thornley No. 3 at Lower Newport Monday.

The McCalmond Oil Co.'s No. 1 on the George Bates farm is showing up for a 100 barrel producer.
